

Conflict and recovery

GOALS SESSION 4

- You recognize the difference between a healthy conflict and a conflict that causes harm
- You apply the recovery steps after tension or a disagreement
- You dare to address someone without damaging the relationship

Avoiding conflict is not culture, it is standing still. Strong teams have tension too, but they know how to work through it together. Today you learn to see conflict as a chance to grow.

EXERCISE 1: MY CONFLICT STYLE1 How do I react to tension?

Choose the reaction that looks most like you when there is tension in the team. Circle or underline your style.

Avoider: I ignore it and hope it goes away on its own

Accommodator: I agree to keep the peace, even if I disagree

Confronter: I say directly what I think, sometimes too sharply

Mediator: I look for a solution that works for everyone

When does your style help the team? When does it hurt?

EXERCISE 2: THE DIFFICULT CONVERSATION2 Addressing someone

Use this model: I see, I feel, I ask you to. Think of tension with a teammate and write it out.

I SEE

I FEEL

I ASK YOU TO

EXERCISE 3: RECOVERY STEPS

3 How does our team recover after a conflict?

After the group discussion: write down the three steps your team agrees on to recover from tension. Fast and honest, without waiting a night.

Who is the natural mediator in our team? What makes them good at it?

PERSONAL REFLECTION

Write down a conflict or tension from the past that stayed unresolved. What could you have done differently? What do you learn from it for this season?

 MENTAL RESILIENCE: HANDLING CONFLICT IN THE TEAM

What do we do as a team when two teammates have a conflict that affects the mood? Write down what you would say or do.

"Peace is not the absence of conflict. It is the ability to handle conflict by peaceful means."
